

Maximize Your Business Deductions (Without Turning Your Books Into a Rodeo)

Seven essentials up top, then a saveable checklist of other deductions smart business owners and their tax professionals should review every year.

Quick note:

Limits and rules change. Loop in your CPA and financial planner so these moves fit your facts.

1) Supercharge Your Retirement Plan (Solo 401(k), SEP, 401(k) & Cash Balance)

Why it helps:

Retirement plans are a clean way to move dollars from “taxable today” to “tax-advantaged tomorrow,” and—if you have employees—to recruit and retain talent.

How to use it:

If you have no employees, compare a Solo 401(k) (salary deferral + employer contribution) with a SEP IRA (employer only). If you do have a team, design a 401(k)—and sometimes a cash balance plan—to maximize owner savings while keeping staff benefits fair. New plans may qualify for start-up credits.

Heads-up:

Contribution limits, catch-ups, and credit amounts update. Coordinate with a TPA/CPA before you adopt the plan.

2) Vehicle Deductions (depreciation, §179, bonus, plus clean-vehicle credits)

Why it helps:

Business-use vehicles can generate meaningful first-year write-offs; certain EVs may qualify for credits.

How to use it:

Track business-use percentage and mileage. Confirm §179/SUV caps and bonus rules before you buy. Verify EV credit eligibility by model/VIN.

Heads-up:

Personal use trims deductions. EV credit rules can change—confirm timing and eligibility before purchase.

3) Hire Your Spouse (for real work at real pay)

Why it helps:

Wages unlock Social Security credits and allow salary deferrals and employer contributions in your retirement plan, boosting household savings.

How to use it:

Define duties, pay a market rate, and put them on payroll. In a 401(k), they can defer salary and you may add employer dollars (subject to testing if you have staff).

Heads-up:

Spousal wages have specific FICA/FUTA rules. Document like you would for any other employee.

4) Hire Your Kids (and consider a Roth IRA)

Why it helps:

Shift income from your higher bracket to their lower one, and use their earned income to fund a Roth IRA for long-term, tax-free growth.

How to use it:

Pay for legitimate, age-appropriate work. Keep timesheets and issue the right forms. Contribute up to the lesser of earned income or the annual IRA limit.

Heads-up:

Under-18 payroll rules differ by business structure. Keep clean records.

5) Health Savings Account (HSA)

Why it helps:

Enjoy the rare triple-tax advantage—deductible contributions, tax-deferred growth, and tax-free withdrawals for qualified medical expenses.

How to use it:

Enroll in an HSA-eligible HDHP, fund and invest the HSA, and save receipts so you can reimburse yourself later—tax-free—even years down the road.

Heads-up:

Not every “high-deductible” plan is HSA-eligible. Verify eligibility first.

6) Home Office Deduction (when it's truly a business space)

Why it helps:

If your space is used regularly and exclusively for business and it's your principal place of business, you can deduct costs via a simplified per-sq-ft method or actual expenses.

How to use it:

Measure once, document forever. Choose simplified (easy) or actual (often larger but paperwork-heavier). Keep square footage notes, a sketch, and photos.

Heads-up:

The kitchen table doesn't qualify. Be able to show regular, exclusive use and that it's your principal place of business.

7) Meals (generally 50% deductible)

Why it helps:

Routine client/prospect/team meals with a bona fide business purpose are usually 50% deductible—little bites add up over a year.

How to use it:

Keep the receipt, list who you met, and note the business purpose. Separate entertainment from meals.

Heads-up:

Travel per diems and employer-provided meals have different rules—don't mix them.

☐ Education credits (AOTC & Lifetime Learning): Coordinate dependency and filing status so the right person claims the credit; don't double-dip.

• IRS – Education Credits Q&A: <https://www.irs.gov/credits-deductions/individuals/education-credits-questions-and-answers>

☐ “Augusta Rule” (≤14 days): Rent your home for short, legitimate business use and exclude the income; document agenda, minutes, comps, and invoice.

• IRS Topic No. 415 – Renting Residential and Vacation Property: <https://www.irs.gov/taxtopics/tc415>

☐ Charitable giving: Cash, property, or appreciated securities (often deducted at the individual level for pass-through owners).

• IRS – Charitable Contribution Deductions: <https://www.irs.gov/charities-non-profits/charitable-organizations/charitable-contribution-deductions>

☐ Accountable plan reimbursements: Reimburse owners/employees for business expenses tax-free when you meet substantiation and timely-return rules.

• IRS – Accountable Plans: <https://www.irs.gov/government-entities/federal-state-local-governments/accountable-plans>

☐ De minimis safe harbor (tangible property): Elect to expense items up to $2,500 per item/invoice (or $5,000 with AFS) instead of capitalizing.

• IRS – Tangible Property Final Regulations: <https://www.irs.gov/businesses/small-businesses-self-employed/tangible-property-final-regulations>

☐ QBI (Section 199A) deduction: Up to 20% of qualified business income for many pass-throughs; watch wage/asset and SSTB limits.

• IRS – Qualified Business Income Deduction (Section 199A): <https://www.irs.gov/newsroom/qualified-business-income-deduction-section-199a>

☐ Self-employed health-insurance deduction: Above-the-line deduction; run through Form 7206 each year.

• IRS – About Form 7206: <https://www.irs.gov/forms-pubs/about-form-7206>

☐ Per diem & travel substantiation: Consider high-low per diem and M&IE rates to simplify reimbursements and recordkeeping.

Contributions to a retirement account may be tax-deductible depending on the taxpayer's income, tax-filing status, and other factors. Withdrawal of pre-tax contributions and/or earnings will be subject to ordinary income tax and, if taken prior to age 59 1/2, may be subject to a 10% federal tax penalty. Prior to making an investment decision, please consult with your financial advisor about your individual situation.

In general, you can withdraw Roth IRA contributions at any time. However, earnings withdrawn prior to 59 1/2 would be subject to income taxes. Roth IRA owners must be 59½ or older and have held the IRA for five years before tax-free withdrawals are permitted.
